CLUB CHAT.

On Tuesday evening a committee of four members of the board of directors of the Ladies' Literary club and four members of the home and education section, met with a committee of the Retail Clerk's association at the club house to discuss the request recently made by the association that the club lend its efforts towards aiding in the early closing of local stores. The request referred to a dress and boot and shoe stores, and the club after hearing and discussing the request of the association committee unanimously endorsed the reports set forth. A letter from the club presenting a plea to local merchants was given the committee and this initial position, it understood, will be followed by the distribution of circulars to the ladies of the city asking them to do their shopping before 6 o'clock, thus doing away with the necessity of the merchants keeping stores open after 6 o'clock. The movement is a most worthy one and deserves the co-operation of all classes.

Tuesday was open day at the Cleoform, a number of guests being present. Mrs. Cora Eldridge gave a paper on Oriental art with pictorial illustrations and a display of Oriental draperies, etc.

Milwaukee club women have arranged a grand spectacular entertainment for the coming biennial. It is to be a Venetian Canal fête at night. This novel plan, as approved a few days ago by the local biennial board and the Citizens' Business League—they have generously pledged $5,000 for the expenses of the biennial, by the way—originated with Mrs. S. S. Frackleton, chairman of the local art committee. As executed by the Milwaukee club women on Monday night of biennial week it will be a brilliant inaugural for the week's intellectualities.

This is the unique scheme: The visiting club women—about 5,000 of them from every State—are expected—will be conveyed in lavishly decorated trolley cars to the river, where electric launches and small steamers with their colored lights and festive streamers will be waiting. At every point up the river an effort will be made, with the co-operation of residents along the river and members of the Art Students' League, to secure picturesque effects like unto Venice itself. The residents will be able to do much in the way of artistic illumination, while the students can pose plastic groups, on which may be turned the soft glow of colored calcium lights, at various points along the river. This splendid effect is to be accentuated by wandering bands of singers, both on small gondola-like boats and on the banks, and it will be a night in Venice sure enough.

The New York Professional Woman's League has just elected Mrs. Lily Langtry a member. It is this league, it may be mentioned, that is on the verge of erecting the first complete woman's club house in Gotham.

"Ex-Club" is the unique name of a new club in Boston, made up of ex-officers of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs. The honorary president is Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

Arkansas club women are agitating the question of a simultaneous election day for clubs all over the State.

Young women students of the Philadelphia Normal School have organized the "Hobby Club." It is not for the purpose of riding one's particular hobby, but to prevent specialists from becoming too opinionated and egotistical.

The New York Federation of Women's clubs is pushing a bill before the State legislature asking for an appropriation of $50,000 to establish a trade school for girls. The club women also ask for an additional fund of $15,000 a year for five years to support the school.

The domestic science department of the Arundel club of Baltimore is nothing if not progressive, for it has set aside $150 for a scholarship at the Boston School of Housekeeping. This sum entitles to three months training and residence at the school.

Inasmuch as Chicago club women were so recently at variance on "What is Society?" it may strike a sisterly chord of sympathy to know Boston club women are splitting their infinitives in a verbal warfare over "Is Polite Society Polite?"

Mrs. Rebecca Lowe, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, has been made one of the honorary presidents of the famous woman's society in France. Mrs. Lowe will sail for Paris immediately following the Milwaukee biennial.

Mrs. Ellen Henrotin has been made second vice president of the National Consumers' League.

FEMINE FLOTSAM.

Nerve Rests.

When your nerves are taut and rough edged and a jar, when you know that, though your family and friends may excuse you and give the trouble some softer name, you are simply unbearably nervous and as cross as a fretful baby, do not resort to drugs. A fatal error of many a woman is to try this soothing powder, that alleviating pill, the other persuasive potion, and float out on the lulling waves of sleep into a sea of beautiful dreams. Neither stimulants affording a temporary crutch, nor narcotics with their transient and delusive aid, should be taken by women on their own suggestion, or taken at all except when ordered by a trustworthy physician. Try change. More immediately restful than any other step you will find an ocean voyage. Marschallus is the land, from the mails, from your friends, from domestic cares, for a week's or month's voyage, you are, without your own effort or volition, made into a new creature. A mother hesitates to leave her children not realizing that occasionally the best gift she can bestow upon them is her absence. Even rows; one loses the sense of perspective; dear as children may be, so much do they manage a day's vacation, made in the when the dictate of unselfish love leads to die for them, but to live for them, and to live not a half-toned, hesitating, fluttering existence, but a large, whole woman can compass an ocean trip, the macopola more successful in spinning her from her slough of despair.

Everybody cannot afford a prolonged jaunt; and many women, looking at the messenger purse from which the means for travel must be extracted, make mournful heads at the mere thought of sailing away from home. Everybody can manage a day's outing, and whether our home be in town or country, a little resolution, a little previous planning, and a decided acceptance of the work while of endeavor will start us on the journey. The thing to do is to take the road. We may have the big carriages brought to the door, the horse harnessed, the good man on the front seat,
